CORRECTIONS TO SILENT FILM AUSTINS

Editor’s note: The corrections below from AOAGS member Roger Brian Austin concern the “Early Silent Film Actors” articles on Austins of America pages 650 and 694. His information comes from an Austin family history titled An Old Colonial Family, which was originally published by Dora Burslem and Audrey Manning in 1972. A revision by Roger Brian Austin and Timothy John Smellie was printed in May 2000, and another printing is planned for May 2002.

William Crosby Piercy Austin was born in 1884, son and seventh child of Charles Piercy Austin (1839-1892) and Rosalie Ann Sarah Crosby (1845-1888). Charles was the fourth child of British Guiana Bishop William Piercy Austin (1807-1892) and his cousin Eliza Piercy Henderson.

Although born in British Guiana, William Crosby Piercy Austin, whose parents died when he was a boy, grew up in Barbados and then in England before joining the firm of Jardine Matheson (probably in the Far East). He was threatened with tuberculosis, so the firm sent him to Los Angeles, generously paying all expenses. William was cured and about to return when the ‘talkies’ came along, and anyone with an English accent was at a premium. Bill had not only the accent, but also good enunciation and an attractive manner. He joined Paramount Studios in Hollywood, and was a passable actor. He quickly made a good deal of money, much of which went to helping his family with the education of its younger members, especially a lame child of his brother Hugh Piercy Austin, who was a baby when his parents died in 1892.

Bill was tall and straight, and in 1929 he was married to a sweet little American, Dora Mae Howe, who had been in silent films. They had a large, Spanish-style bungalow on Beverly Hills and Bill was a ‘feature’ so that trippers would stroll across the front lawn and tick him off in their little books when they had done the ‘stars.’ He lived latterly in Corona del Mar, 75 miles north of San Diego, California. Bill and Dora had no children.

William Crosby Piercy Austin had no brother named Albert (see page 650), and I am very skeptical of the claim by Lawrence Austin (see page 695) that he was a son of William Crosby Piercy Austin. – Roger B. Austin
